Synopsis:

It is 1995 in Raymond California, a thriving town that is a cross section of suburban America. Reverend HENRY MAXWELL, Raymond’s local pastor, prepares to take his wife and young son on a fishing trip upstate. As they drive to the campgrounds, a tragic car accident takes place, killing Henry’s wife and young son.

The story moves to present day where we find the town of Raymond has hit on hard times. The once prosperous town is now a shadow of it’s former self. A car pulls into the dilapidated square and THE DRIFTER exits. He is a mysterious character and there’s something truly different about him.

Enter ALEX YORK, an ambitious politician who wants to bring a casino to town to turn the fortunes of Raymond around. He will stop at nothing and has set his sites on the perfect place to build his casino, the grounds of Henry Maxwell’s church. York approaches the wealthy real estate tycoons in town to finance his casino.

Will the towns people band together and be strong enough to fight off the temptation of easy money and do the right thing by saving their church? “What Would Jesus Do?” is an exciting motion picture that confronts many of the questions facing American families and communities and will resonate with the Christian population of the world.
